

Talking to you made me feel optimistic about the future of SW practice.

I trained in Harrow as a student and am now on my ASYE. I've really appreciated the learning culture that is encouraged here: I find that I have been encouraged to ask for advice and challenge management, share evidence-based practice and participate in regular training. Social work is never the easiest of jobs but it feels more manageable when casework is shared through systemic units and clinicians advise on cases, I feel I have been able to access all kinds of expertise as a result.

There is a good culture of teaching in Harrow.
